

“Sponge-a-Teacher”

Giving students the chance to throw a sponge at their teachers with no repercussion is a great way to quickly raise a large amount of money. Make sure to get as many teachers as possible to participate to encourage more students to have a go. Getting senior staff to take part (e.g. school principle) is an added bonus.

Cross Dressing Day

Get team members to dress up as the opposite sex for the day. Make sure the team members push people to sponsor them to maximise earnings from the day. It is a good idea to have the cross dressers to walk around school during the lunch hour with donation buckets.

Sponsored Silence

If you have loud or annoying members in the team, why not make them do a sponsored silence for a day. People are sure to pay for them to shut up for the day!

School Merchandise

Most students are more than happy to show their school pride, so why not capitalise on this by selling school merchandise. A popular item is customised hoodies with the school logo on.

Robot Driving Events

Boys love their toys, so why not give everyone the chance to drive and operate one of your robots. Charge to allow people to drive one for a few minutes. If you have several robots that can be used for this, use more than one robot to allow multiple people to have a go driving at the same time.

Cake Sales

Cake sale are another way to quickly raise funds. Be sure to place your stall in the most populated areas at peak time to ensure a good return.

Paintball

Organising a paintballing event at the school for students proves to be a very popular event, with the potential to earn a lot if organised well.

“Hug-Buckets”

The same as a kissing booth, but with hugs instead of kissing. You’ll be surprised how many students would like a hug after a stressful day. Make sure the stall is manned by several team members from both sexes.